Things to consider

Early childhood programs with learning as a focus have been shown to significantly improve a child's speaking, reading and math skills. All leading to success in school!

What you can do

- Enroll your infant, toddler or young child in an Early Childhood program at school or in the community. Make sure the program understands the importance of working with and teaching your child. That they understand play as learning. You can expect to see the following results:
 - Reduce the chance of your child being in a special education class.
 - Reduce the need for your child to repeat a grade
 - Reduce the chance of your child being arrested as a juvenile.
